Neutrik BPX-2 - Red Sleeve

Description

The Neutrik BPX-2 strain relief offers high protection against various cable bending stresses. These glands are compatible with Neutrik's PX series, with integrated strain relief providing an extra layer of safety to your system.

Made from polyurethane, these robust components are also vital in cable identification and can help determine where your cables are routed to and from. They are made to fit both male and female connectors.

The Neutrik BPX-2 is red, but other colour variants are available.
